EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg Council last night approved the master plan for the future development of the borough.

The action opens the door for a 20-year capital improvement program, costing $1,945,000.

Candeb and Cabot Associates of Scranton drew up the plan which was completed in June of 1963. The study was started in 1960.

Guard Patrols Hillsdale

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Negotiations in the stubborn Essex Wire Corp. strike collapsed Tuesday on the eve of the Hillsdale plant's reopening and with Hillsdale County's 35,000 people put under curfew and National Guard city patrols ordered reinforced.

The strike peace talks here broke down in the midst of reports of progress.

The striking International Union of Electrical Workers assailed Gov. George W. Romney for authorizing Essex Wire's reopening Wednesday after a five-day shutdown ordered by the governor.

NY Cops On Duty To Halt Gangs

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner Tuesday ordered nearly 1,000 policemen put on overtime and sent into the city's streets and subways to combat a mounting wave of mayhem and vandalism by youthful Negro terrorists.

"I am determined to see that we are going to have law and order in this city of ours," Wagner declared after an emergency conference with Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy and Transit Authority Chairman Joseph E. O'Grady. They were concerned over wild weekend outbursts by Negro youths.

Little Peace Parley On Laos

LONDON (AP) — Britain, with American blessing, was reported Tuesday night ready to accept Communist Poland's compromise plan for calling a "little peace conference" on Laos.

The Polish plan was slated as a main topic of discussion between envoys of at least five pro-Western governments who examined the Laotian crisis in Vientiane Tuesday. The meeting between U.S., Canadian, British, South Vietnamese and Thai envoys was announced in the House of Commons by Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler.

Poland's move looked as if it was designed to head off a dangerous confrontation between Red Chinese and American power in or near Laos.

Dixie Switches Rights Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern foes of the civil rights bill switched tactics Tuesday and called for votes this week on some of their proposed amendments.

But the Senate majority leader, Mike Mansfield, D-Mont. said "no possibility."

The jockeying for votes in next Tuesday's cloture showdown was also highlighted by efforts of President Johnson and his Democratic leaders to stress that he is keeping hands off, despite the prospects of a hairline margin one way or the other.

3 Die Before Firing Squad

HAVANA (AP) — A Cuban Lionel Club leader, accused of going around Cuba recruiting club members to spy for the United States, died before a firing squad with two alleged confederates, a communique said Tuesday.

The executions were carried out Monday. Four Cuban exiles charged with trying to infiltrate Cuba to organize a terror campaign were shot last Thursday.

Market Takes Sharp Dip

NEW YORK (AP) — Rails abandoned their stock market leadership and the list sank Tuesday to its sharpest loss in about two weeks. Trading was slack.

Volume dwindled to 4.17 million shares from 4.31 million Monday.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 4.78 to 813.78.

Pocono Airport Gets Tax Backing

MT. POCONO — Five of the seven municipalities sponsoring the Pocono Mountain Airport last night agreed to levy a quarter-mill tax on current assessed valuations until 1973 to help finance a $134,000 building project.

The townships of Barrett, Paradise, Pocono and Tobyhanna and Mt. Pocono Borough had been paying proceeds from a half-mill tax calculated on 1951 assessed valuations.

By levying the quarter-mill tax on present real estate value the five will just about double their 1964 aid of $3,101.

Corlough Township supervisors told the airport authority at a meeting in the Mt. Pocono borough building, they have voted to increase aid from $250 to $500 but will not go along on the new quarter mill.

The supervisors agreed to reconsider the action after it was explained the tax only cost the township $630.

Aid from Tunkhannock Township, which supports the airport but is not a member of the authority, will go from $204 to $184 under the new schedule.

The county commissioners, who attended the meeting, also agreed to contribute $15,000 to the authority until 1973 when money borrowed for the project is scheduled to be fully repaid.

Shastri Leads India Down Neutral Path

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Lal Bahadur Shastri, born to poverty in a land where poverty is a way of life, pledged Tuesday as the nation's new leader to build "a new social order" for India.

And answering the question world capitals have been asking, he promised to continue the non-aligned foreign policy laid down by his predecessor, the late Jawaharlal Nehru.

The moderate Socialist, thrust into leadership at the age of 59, outlined his hopes and goals to a news conference after a triumphant appearance before Parliament.

Earlier in the day, the ruling Congress party members of Parliament unanimously named him their leader—an automatic designation as prime minister. He will take the oath of office later this week. A close associate of Nehru, this will climax a career in which Shastri joined Gandhi's campaign for independence at the age of 17.

Weeping as he recalled Prime Minister Nehru's death last Wednesday, Shastri told Parliament that "socialism is our objective" and in these days of crisis India must follow in Nehru's footsteps.

In his speech he concentrated on domestic problems—India's "biggest enemies, poverty and unemployment."

Congratulations came from President Johnson and other world leaders. Even Pakistan, an enemy since the birth of India in 1947, offered to cooperate with Shastri in trying to reach a settlement of their disputes, such as the rival claims to Kashmir. The offer came from Pakistan's foreign minister, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

Philly Vote Recount 'Eeny, Meeny' Way?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The much-battered-about problem of how to hold hearings on 561 challenged Philadelphia absentee ballots in the April 28 primary election was returned by the state Supreme Court Tuesday to the Philadelphia County Board of Elections.

Chief Justice John C. Bell Jr., reaffirming a previous court order that hearings must be held "as soon as humanly possible," said the state's highest court would issue no guidelines.

"I guess we'll just have to go enny, meeny, miny, mo," said City Commissioner Thomas McHenry when informed of Bell's order.

McHenry admitted he was stumped, saying he didn't know how to ask absentee voters to appear as witnesses "when we don't know which are their ballots."

In an attempt to resolve the impasse, City Solicitor Edward G. Bauer Jr., said that he will confer Wednesday if possible, with Philadelphia city commissioners and attorneys for Miss Genevieve Blatt, state secretary of internal affairs, and Justice Michael A. Musmanno, of the state Supreme Court, to try to work out procedures.

Miss Blatt holds a statewide 640-vote margin over Musmanno in the hotly-contested fight for the U. S. senatorial nomination. Still in dispute, however, are the 561 challenged absentee votes in Philadelphia, 377 absentee votes in Lackawanna County, and a Musmanno margin of more than 1,000 votes cast in Philadelphia in so-called blank spaces on voting machines in 13 wards.

LBJ Visits Site Of Bomb Scare

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson made a brief, unannounced appearance Tuesday night at a Washington hotel only minutes after the lobby had been evacuated because of a bomb threat.

The President and Mrs. Johnson drove to the Sheraton Park Hotel to drop in on a dinner at which the Women's National Democratic Club honored Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

The bomb threat, received by the hotel's telephone switchboard, apparently was not related in any way to Johnson's appearance since his decision to show up at the Stevenson dinner was made at the last minute.

Johnson spent about five minutes at the hotel, then left and drove with his wife to the White House.

If he was aware of the bomb threat he appeared unconcerned.

Hotel officials said a switchboard operator received a call at 6:57 p.m. from a man who said, "I'm going to drop a bomb in your lobby at 7 o'clock."

District of Columbia police evacuated the lobby. A careful 10-minute search revealed nothing.

Monroe Planners To Apply For U. S. Aid

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Planning Commission last night approved a tentative budget for 1964 including application for federal planning assistance and hiring of a professional county planner.

The commission also passed a resolution supporting Tocks Island National Recreation Area bills which will receive hearings in Washington Monday and Tuesday.

Ralph Reppert, budget committee member, said the commission hopes to have approval by the state Bureau of Community Development and Monroe County Commissioners so that application for federal Urban Planning Assistance funds can be made by July 1.

The 1964 budget covering September through December totals $3,790 with $3,880 paid by federal two-thirds aid and $1,930 or one-third paid by the county. With $579 added for contingency, the planning commission request for 1964 county funds totaled $2,509, according to Chester Miller, chairman of the budget committee.

Leo Achterman Jr., engineer consultant to the commission, urged the group to put special emphasis on its job of educating county citizens on the need for planning and hearing citizens' views of planning problems.

"Education works two ways," Achterman said. "The public will modify your views and suggest changes in your plans. This is very important."

Commission members decided to make a second tour of Monroe County real estate developments Friday at 1 p.m.

LBJ Accused Of Misleading U. S. On SE Asian Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Tuesday the future of Southeast Asia as a whole is at stake in Laos and South Viet Nam. He said the United States "cannot fail to do its full share to meet the challenge."

In a lengthy statement opening his first news conference May 9, Johnson underscored official concern about Communist military advances in Laos and South Viet Nam.

But he announced no new American moves. And he denied that the United States has prepared plans for carrying the Vietnamese guerrilla war into the northern part of that country.

This touched off a prompt retort from Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., who said that in making that statement Johnson "deliberately misled the American people."

Laird had said over the weekend that the administration has been preparing plans for several months "to move into North Viet Nam" but he stopped short of saying whether the preparations will be carried out.

Johnson was asked about Laird's statement at a news conference, his first since May 9. He replied that Laird is not a spokesman for the administration and then added, in response to another question, that he knows of no plans for carrying the Vietnamese warfare into the northern, Communist part of the country.

Johnson declined to discuss probable results of this week's Honolulu meeting to review the ominous trend of events in Southeast Asia, except to say it should help "improve our effectiveness and our efficiency."

The President said Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secre-

Salinger Ahead Of Cranston

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona forged into the lead Tuesday night in California's winner-take-all Republican presidential primary.

Goldwater, the top collector of convention delegate votes, pushed past New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who had jumped off to a brief early lead in a nip-and-tuck battle for the state's 86 nominating ballots.

With 67 per cent of the vote tabulated, Goldwater had 715,600 and Rockefeller had 648,432.

Two networks—NBC and CBS—using electronic computers declared Pierre Salinger the winner over Alan Cranston for the Democratic nomination for senator.

The tally on this race was Salinger, 692,000 and Cranston, 627,564.

CBS said on the basis of returns from model precincts that Goldwater would win with 53 per cent of the total vote, expected to run about two million.

ABC said its projection indicated Goldwater was the winner, based on 22 per cent of the vote counted.

Associated Press precinct tabulations showed Goldwater was taking 52 per cent of the GOP vote to Rockefeller's 48 per cent.

In Los Angeles, Richard J. Kleindienst, director of field operations for the Arizona senator, said Goldwater was on the verge of a California victory which would clinch the GOP nomination for him in the July convention.

Goldwater himself said, "Presumably the electronic gadgets are correct. I want to thank you and others in this country, not for a victory for Goldwater, but for the mainstream of Republican thinking."

There were some warning signs, however.

NBC's Electronic Voter Analysis showed that Goldwater was not running as strongly in Los Angeles as had been expected. His margin over Rockefeller

Price Fixing Costs Firms $29 Million

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Six of America's biggest electrical equipment manufacturers were ordered Tuesday to pay nearly $29 million to two Philadelphia utilities for fixing prices and rigging bids in the sale of power transformers.

A federal jury fixed damages at more than $9.6 million in the civil antitrust case, and U.S. Dist. Judge John S. Lord 3rd promptly trebled, as allowed under the law.

The civil damage suit was brought by the Philadelphia Electric Co. and the United Gas Improvement Co. against General Electric Co.; Westinghouse Electric Corp.; Allis-Chalmers of West Allis, Wis.; Moloney Electric Co. and Wagner Electric Co., both of St. Louis; and McGraw-Edison Co., Elgin, Ill.

The utilities, which had sought $12.7 million for alleged overcharges, claimed that the prices they paid for transformers in the 1950s were "raised, fixed and maintained at high and artificial levels."

The jury of seven men and five women deliberated 10 1/2 hours after getting the case Monday in a trial that began March 15.

The suits against the six utilities grew out of successful criminal antitrust prosecutions by the federal government in 1961. At that time 29 manufacturers and 46 individuals pleaded either guilty or no defense to bid rigging and price-fixing.

Fines of more than $2 million were imposed, and six executives spent nearly a month in jail for their part in breaking the antitrust laws.

This was the first of more than a thousand similar suits against the electrical manufacturers based on their price-fixing convictions.

Many of the companies have settled out-of-court claims made by cities, government agencies and private utilities for alleged overpayments.

Senate Adds $2.7 Million To State Bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee added $2.7 million Tuesday to the administration's giant general appropriations bill, restoring most of the money cut by the House and setting the stage for a final showdown next week.

At the same time, the Senate also started action on the administration's land condemnation reform bill and advanced enabling legislation for Project 70 into position for a final vote Wednesday.

Sen. Albert R. Pechar, R-Armstrong, acting as majority floor leader in the absence of Sen. James S. Berger, R-Potter, said final passage of the appropriations bill and eminent domain probably would be held off until next Monday.

The House, with nothing to do but wait for the Senate, is in recess until then.

COMSAT Stocks Snapped Up

NEW YORK (AP) — The space-minded public snapped up $100 million of stock in the Communications Satellite Corp.—COMSAT—Tuesday.

Sale of the five-million-share offering in the space communications venture was cleared Tuesday morning by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Demand was so heavy that brokers rationed stock below the 50-share limit per customer set by the government.

Earlier, another five million shares were allotted to 163 companies in the communications industry at $20 a share. American Telephone and Telegraph Co. invested $38 million.

The $200 million raised by the stock sale will finance a system of relaying signals around the world via space vehicles.

Some of the shares bought by the public quickly found their way into the over-the-counter market where the price spurted to $25 bid, $27 asked.

These dealings were by traders looking for a quick profit. Many buyers apparently felt that COMSAT represents an opportunity to get in on the ground floor of something like American Telephone and General Motors.

Under the rationing system, it was estimated that COMSAT stock was bought by 500,000 to 6 million individuals. Until now, the largest initial distribution was Ford Motor Co. stock in 1956, which was purchased by about 320,000 persons.

Door Open For Northern Attack

HONOLULU (AP) — U.S. officials strongly hinted Tuesday military action might be taken against Communist North Viet Nam if it and Red China continue to back rebellions in Laos and South Viet Nam.

But these officials, winding up a two-day strategy session on Southeast Asia, said that so far Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara have not proposed a plan "to enlarge the war to the north."

They told newsmen, "The future is something else, depending on how things develop" and what the other side does.

This was the clearest indication yet that serious thought is being given to possible counteraction against the North Viet Nam.

Asked what the prospects were for dispatching U.S. troops to Thailand as in a previous Laotian crisis two years ago, officials said it will depend on further developments of the situation and the wishes of the Thais.

Reporters were told no change was contemplated in the role of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam, a role now de-

Death Toll Affects Speeding Penalties

HARRISBURG (AP) — Was the Scranton administration backpedaling last week in setting heavier drivers' license suspension penalties for some traffic violations, particularly speeding?

The question arose because of criticism stirred last July when the then 6-month-old Scranton administration revamped Gov. David L. Lawrence's suspension schedule, which had the reputation of being very stringent.

The Scranton schedule, written by Traffic Safety Commissioner Harry H. Brainerd, levied penalties for motorists convicted of speeding up to 15 miles an hour over limits of 50 and above, but was harder on those who traveled more than 15 m.p.h. over the limit.

Critics argued that the largest percentage of drivers caught speeding usually travel 5 to 15 m.p.h. over the limit and that only a relatively small group are caught at excessively high speeds.

"Our theory was that with modern cars on good roads it is easy to innocently slip a few miles over 50 m.p.h.," said Brainerd.

The administration revised its thinking somewhat last week as reports came in that at least 504 persons were killed in traffic accidents during the first four months of 1964, compared with 472 last year.

The 504 figure may go higher because the bureau of traffic safety is no longer updating its monthly figures as accident victims the weeks or months later.

Brainerd said the change last week resulted because excessive speeding rose from 8th to 6th place in January as a leading cause of traffic fatalities.

"We spotted the trend and we hoped to do something about it before it gets out of hand," he added.

Clark, Scott's Office Tab $80,000 For 1st 3 Months

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than $80,000 in government funds was paid to 68 persons in the first three months of this year by Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa., to handle their office affairs.

Clark and Scott employed 34 persons each and paid their staffs more than $40,000 in the three-month period, the secretary of the Senate reported Tuesday. Some employees worked part time or for only part of the three-month period.

Michael J. Byrne, Clark's executive assistant in Philadelphia, received the highest pay in both offices—$17,119 for the three-month period. Scott's highest paid employee was Robert L. Kinzig, his administrative

Chaplain Johnson Home; Assigned To Ft. Benning

By Stan Schaffer
Daily Record Reporter

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Having spent three years with the U.S. Army's Chaplain Corps in Germany, (Lt. Col.) Gray G. Johnson and family returned to Delaware Water Gap for a two-week leave, before departing for Ft. Benning, Ga., today where he will assume duties as a post chaplain.

While in Germany he was the post chaplain at Bamberg Post in southeast Bavaria. In Germany for one and a half years. As post-chaplain his chief responsibility was to co-ordinate operations and functions among other clergy units. He was rated the leading chaplain.

Before assuming duties at Bamberg Chaplain Johnson was stationed at the post hospital in Badkreuznach for a year and a half. At Badkreuznach he was the post hospital chaplain.

When it comes to oldtimers in the U.S. Army — Chaplain Johnson could well fit into this category. He had served with the Army for 15 years. He entered the Army in 1948 at Ft. Meade, Md. The last time he was in the United States was three years ago.

"As progress is constantly being made throughout the world, Chaplain Johnson noted the amount of progress being made in the Pocono Mountain area by relating the following story:

Wrong Turn

"Coming home, I drove from Bamberg Post to Frankfurt, Germany. No trouble, no wrong turns made. From Frankfurt I drove to Bremerhaven, a seaport in northwest Germany. Here the car and our possessions were loaded aboard ship — bound for the United States.

"Upon arrival at Ft. Hamilton in New York City, I drove through down and midtown Manhattan, still no wrong turns. Finally, I approached the Delaware River Bridge, crossed and proceeded — here's where I made the first wrong turn. I almost ended up in East Stroudsburg.

Well, I finally found the right turn and arrived at my father's home in Delaware Water Gap."

"I was really surprised, I didn't recognize the area. With all the new super highways and innovations, it looked so different."

"This really shows the amount of change and progress," Chaplain Johnson said.

"My family and I enjoy being back. There's so much sunshine here. I've been in a number of countries and there's no place like home," he said.

Chaplain Johnson explained that "In Germany the summers are very short. The summer season arrives late, leaves early and there's a great deal of rain."

His last tour of duty in Germany was the second tour of duty in Germany within the past five years. The first time was from April 1954 to July of 1956. The last tour was from May 1961 to May 1964.

Church Services

Church services and attendance on military posts in Germany generally are much the same as in the United States.

"At Bamberg Post we had about 15 per cent participation and attendance at church services," explained Chaplain Johnson.

"On the post six church services were held on Sunday. There were three Protestant and three Catholic church services held throughout the day. Jewish services were held on Friday," Johnson added.

"Our Saturday and Sunday Church School attendance were well attended. On Saturday we had the Roman Catholic Education Program about 150 children attended. On Sunday, we had the Protestant Sunday School. Approximately 300 children attended."

Chaplain Johnson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson of Delaware Water Gap. His brother, William D. Johnson is assistant secretary to Governor Scranton's secretary.

Chaplain Johnson graduated from the Stroudsburg High School in 1940. He graduated from South University in 1945 and seminary of the school in 1947.

His wife is the former Helen Louise Smith. They have two children, Gray, 15, and Bonnie, 11. Both the children speak fluent German.

Bonnie Johnson has had three

years of school in Germany. Gray Johnson, including kindergarten, has had five years of school in Germany. In Germany they were taught under the American dependent school system.

Under this system children are taught the German language and German culture in the first grade.

"I have also been taught German and am able to converse with the German speaking people. Of course, this depends on the area of Germany you are in, because of the different dialects.

"In some respects it's difficult to relate some of the experiences and things I have seen," he said.

"For instance, the death of the late President Kennedy, U2 flights, the East German Iron Curtain, all of these events have been efficiently related to the American people rapidly through the use of modern communications."

assistant, at $1,382.

The money allowed each senator for his office payroll is based on a formula never made public by Senate officials, but takes into account the population of the senator's home state.

Salaries listed in the latest report included only government money and not private funds a senator might use to hire additional employees or to pay his aides more money.

Others on Clark's staff who were paid more than $2,000 in government funds during the three-month period are: Bernard E. Norylch, administrative assistant, $4,326; Ralph R. Widner, legislative assistant, $3,621; Harry K. Schwartz, legislative assistant, $3,141; and Marie C. Littman, office manager, $2,139.

Others on Scott's staff who received more than $2,000 in government funds during the period are: Edith V. Skinner, clerk, $3,930; Richard W. Murphy, legislative assistant, $3,106; Geraldine M. Cregan, clerk, $2,508; and Edward E. Pilch, assistant clerk, $2,041.

'Nonentity' Bishop Quick With Quips

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP)—The Most Rev. Gerald V. McDevitt, auxiliary bishop of Philadelphia, told the Villanova University graduating class this week.

"I am that nonentity whom you turned into a celebrity by publicizing my absence of fame. No Christian, much less a bishop should be adverse to a lesson in humility."

The bishop referred to efforts by some seniors to have him replaced as the commencement speaker. They urged the university to obtain a speaker of "more national prominence."

He said that what hurt him most about the entire episode was that although as an honorary degree recipient he's a member of the Class of 1964, he wasn't given a chance to sign the petition asking for his replacement as commencement speaker.

"I hope you will invite me to the class reunion," he said as the audience roared.

He addressed commencement exercises at which 1,302 seniors, Villanova's largest graduating class, received degrees.

State News Roundup

Vote Probe Ends In Luzerne

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A two day investigation of alleged vote frauds in Luzerne County in the April 28 primary election has been completed, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said Tuesday.

The FBI office here said its report has been sent to Assistant Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall in Washington. Results of the probe will have to come from Marshall, the FBI said.

The Luzerne County complaints charged ballot frauds in the Democratic contest for the U.S. senate nomination. The FBI said the investigation was confined to Luzerne County, and did not include Lackawanna as previously reported.

The Democratic contest between Genevieve Blatt, state internal affairs secretary, and Justice Michael Musmanno of the state Supreme Court still is undecided. Miss Blatt leads by 640 votes.

Crime Up In Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Major crimes in Philadelphia rose 10 per cent during the first four months of this year compared with the corresponding period of 1963, the police department reported Tuesday.

The total from last January through April was 10,400, while the figure for the same period the previous year was 9,460, police commissioner Howard R. Leary said.

Potato Salad Baffles Cons

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Officials at Holmesburg prison here have decided that from both a culinary and economic standpoint it is better to buy the potato salad than have the inmates make it.

It seems, prison officials say, that the inmates have been making the potato salad but "not consistently good." Also, it is cheaper to buy than have "unskilled and untrained inmates" make it.

So, bids will be opened June 9, for 2,700 pounds of potato salad.

Rep. Green Quits Law School

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Rep. William J. Green quit his law school class at Villanova University and thus did not graduate Monday.

Elected to the fifth district seat at the April 28 primary, he left school two weeks later.

"My congressional duties take precedence," he said in Washington.

Dean Harold G. Reuschlein of the law school said Green withdrew in good standing shortly after the start of the second semester. The exigencies of the campaigning didn't give Green much time to complete his final year, the dean said.

Computer System For Library

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A proposal calling for creation of a computer library system composed of a pool of scientific tapes and microfilms was revealed Tuesday by Dr. Stafford L. Warren, special assistant to the President for mental retardation.

The system, stemming from recommendations by the President's 1962 panel report on mental retardation, would make more scientific literature available to all scientists, he said.

Dr. Warren said the panel pointed out that computer techniques for library purposes should be exploited. This proposal will benefit all scientists as well as those in the limited field of mental retardation, he said.

Alessandrini Mum On Loyalty Oath Ruling

HARRISBURG (AP)—Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandrini this week declined to speculate on whether a U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing loyalty oaths in Washington State would have an effect on Pennsylvania.

The high court in a 7-2 decision threw out the Washington oaths for teachers and other state employees because they were considered vague and did not "allow public servants to know what is and is not disloyal."

Asked to comment in light of the fact that Pennsylvania requires a loyalty oath for public employees, Alessandrini said:

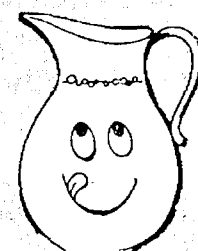

"I can't tell because I'm not familiar with the exact statutes under which Washington was operating. Until I see the statutes and the Supreme Court opinion, I will be unable to say whether the decision will affect Pennsylvania's law."

Annual Moving-Up Day At Stroud Union Today

STROUDSBURG — The annual Moving-Up Day ceremony of the Stroud Union High School, a tradition of more than 30 years standing, will be observed today at 1:15 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

The present sophomore class, along with parents, will be present for the ceremony. Traditionally, the juniors are the first to enter and will be escorted to their places by Geoffrey Robbins and Kristin Schiebel, president and secretary, respectively, of the present ninth grade.

After the entrance of grade eleven, seniors will be escorted to their places of honor by Barbara Ducklow, president, and Brenda Reish, secretary, of the present sophomore class.

Bruce Reish, student council president, will give the challenge of the American's Creed and lead the audience in the pledge to the flag. The national anthem will then be sung.

At this point the graduating class is escorted from the gymnasium and the new senior class advances to take the place of the departing graduates. The junior class song is next in order with Dean Keenhold, Cathy Parnell and John Schnaltman providing the music.

Next, the juniors give a cheer dedicated to the seniors standing outside the gymnasium with the seniors responding in a cheer dedicated to next year's Class of 1965. The seniors are then escorted to the gymnasium and the new senior class advances to take the place of the departing graduates. The junior class song is next in order with Dean Keenhold, Cathy Parnell and John Schnaltman providing the music.

Jet Shakes Bushkill

BUSHKILL — A loud noise in the Bushkill area last week startled residents and broke some glass.

The sound which occurred about 11:30 a.m. Wednesday sent many people throughout their homes searching for a possible clue to the strange sound.

Mrs. C. N. Guillot of Bushkill discovered that the sound had caused a glass bottle about 100 years old to fall from a window and shatter into many pieces. A solid glass inkwell also fell, but it was not broken.

After some talk and investigation among the residents, they concluded that the sound was created by a jet which had broken the sound barrier, according to Mrs. Florence Smith.

His station wagon is a nursery on wheels. So is hers.

What else have they got in common?
More usable space than they'd get in the biggest conventional wagon. 170 cubic feet versus the conventional 84.
Yet their wagons are a yard or more shorter. They can relax about parking. No deck sticks out in back.
No hood sticks out in front.
They've got the engine in the rear, with the weight over the rear wheels. For extra traction on ice, snow, mud.
They've got a slide-back sunroof that makes room at the top for green trees, clothes trees, and other tall things.
Removable seats that make room down below for a 9 x 12 rug folded up, or sod for a fair-sized lawn. An open playpen or a crib.
With side doors that open 4 feet wide to handle the big, bulky stuff.
The seats hold 8 adults and are set well apart. Legroom stretches way down. Headroom stretches way up.
What they've got in common is an uncommon wagon.

Presidential Succession

A constitutional amendment to improve the machinery for Presidential succession has been approved by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee and will probably be approved by the full committee and sent to the Senate floor for debate.

Some new law is needed in this sensitive area of weakness in the U. S. Constitution.

The committee-approved proposal sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, Indiana Democrat, permits the President to select a vice president, subject to majority vote of Congress, when there is no vice president.

If the President is disabled, his duties and powers would be taken over by the vice president, acting as President temporarily.

In a more complicated section, the bill provides that any dispute between the President and the vice president or the cabinet as to his disability must be settled by two-thirds majority of Congress.

Former President Eisenhower has urged immediate action on this problem, citing two illnesses during which he was not capable of handling affairs of the nation.

"Solve it now," Eisenhower said.

"The problem is not as intricate as we make it."

Of course the problem is not that simple. The two sticky questions are how to decide when the vice president should temporarily take over and how to decide when the President is no longer incapacitated.

The proposal to settle this difficult question by a two-thirds majority of Congress is cumbersome. This vital question must be decided quickly by the vice president or cabinet if the law of succession is to be improved.

The constitutional amendment must make it clear who makes these decisions and how they are to be made. The nation cannot wait while the Congress debates the point. This section of the proposed amendment needs further polishing.

As Senator Bayh himself said:

"In these times when whole armies can be moved halfway around the world in a matter of hours and when civilization as we know it can be destroyed in a matter of minutes, the American people must be assured that there is always a strong hand on the tiller and that crucial decisions are made unimpeded by physical or mental disability."

Pennsylvania Prosperity

Governor William Scranton was understandably happy last week when he announced that unemployment in Pennsylvania dropped to 5.5 per cent in mid-May, lowest level for May since 1953 and first time since October, 1957, that unemployment has been under six per cent.

The number of people estimated unemployed was cut from 374,000 or 8.2 per cent of the work force in January to 250,000 or 5.5 per cent in May.

Of course, this doesn't help the quarter million people still not working, but in terms of recent Pennsylvania economic history, the 5.5 per cent jobless rate is something to celebrate.

"I think it shows that Pennsylvania is really on its way up, and has had a remarkable past year," Governor Scranton asserted.

He could well take some of the credit. His efforts to improve the "business climate in Pennsylvania"—a vague but vital factor—have been energetic and largely successful, although much remains to be done.

His recent personal visits to Wilmington, Delaware, and Detroit, Michigan, in search of plant construction by DuPont and General Motors Corporation in Pennsylvania dramatized the governor's enthusiasm for industrial development.

The governor was quick to acknowledge that the booming national economy is the major cause of better business in this state. But he justly took credit for "the efforts that are being made by this administration and by people generally in Pennsylvania to create a good business climate."

Stassen Versus Wallace

WASHINGTON—Last Thursday former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota addressed the National Press Club. This Thursday, Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama will do the same.

Stassen, who for all his drawbacks is a decent human being, can't compete with Wallace as an attraction, tickets to hear Wallace shoot off his biggest bazoo have outsold those for Stassen five to one. There is no point in criticizing newspapermen because five times as many have paid to hear Wallace as to hear Stassen. It is a safe bet that if it was a matter of personal choice, the odds would be 5 to 1 the other way around.

But newspapermen must follow the news, and disgusting as it is to have to concede it, Wallace has made himself five times as newsworthy as Stassen.

The governor of Alabama can get more mileage out of a single unreasonable sentence than the former Governor of Minnesota can get out of 10,000 reasonable words.

Child Harold, as I dubbed Stassen years ago when he started running for everything but the Kentucky Derby, is made of fine, resilient stuff, however, he just can't be discouraged.

He can't be discouraged from speaking either, even if he holds a mass meeting and only his uncle shows up. He proved this at the National Press Club.

While he was addressing more unoccupied chairs than Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina faces in the civil rights filibuster, a lunchroom guest whispered defiantly:

"If this doesn't discourage Child Harold, nothing will."

Child Harold, however, remained utterly, blissfully undiscouraged. Also, apparently unaware, because he said: "I am happy because an opportunity to meet with so many able men of the press for whom I have admiration and affection has been relatively rare for me in recent years."

It was rare on this occasion, and not relatively. The only members of the working press in the place—with the exception of your correspondent who is a magpie and picks everywhere—were elected officers of the club, who have taken the equivalent of a Hippocratic oath never to miss a luncheon unless at death's door.

The 76 luncheoners were public relations men, press agents, mattress makers, ink salesmen, and an ancient advocate of woman's suffrage, just aroused after three-quarters of a century in suspended animation, who confused Stassen with Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

More than 500 tickets to hear Gov. Wallace speak were sold a week in advance. When I got to the Stassen affair, I was surprised to find the door closed, because this is contrary to press club practice. When I tried the door, a half-conscious member in the lounge, cried:

"Don't go in there. It's a private meeting."

I finally got the door open. It wasn't a private meeting; it just looked like it. I demanded of a member of the board of governors whether the door had been closed to keep certain elements out.

"No," he replied, "to keep certain elements in." About a third way through his speech it seemed as if Stassen might be about to launch into something interesting, after all. He perked up a dozen sleepers by saying:

"I do suggest to you that President Johnson is a modern President Harding."

Most of us have been brought up to believe that Harding may not have been the ideal president, so we waited for the big denunciation. But all Stassen had to add was that both Johnson and Harding pursued a policy of all things to all men.

Stassen to me is one of the great mystery men of the age. The mystery is:

How did he get elected Governor of Minnesota in the first place?

The postmaster has been asked to make a series of flag stamps, starting with the first flag of the United States, and following this with the other flags up to the present fifty star flag and to continue the "flag" series with one for each state, issuing one a year either on the 4th of July or on Memorial Day.

So far there has been no reaction to this suggestion, perhaps if many collectors and organizations wrote asking for this series some action would be taken.

The United Nations Trade and Development set of the five and eleven cent values, scheduled for February release will have first day sale June 15.

This set was turned down by the United Nations Postal Administration due to errors in the printing and thus held up 'till this date.

Canada will release the floral emblems of Quebec and Ontario, each a five cent value, June 30.

Club News
The Monroe Stamp Club will meet tonight at 8 p.m. This will be our last meeting for the season, until September. A club reunion will be held, followed by our closing party. All members are asked to be present, and to bring a guest. Visitors are always welcome.

Bring your "lots" for auction as this will wind up our 1963-64 season we want to have a good meeting. See you tonight.

'Brother Can You Spare A Vote'

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison
HARRISBURG—Once again an $11,000,000 bonanza (plus-plus-plus) is being handed out to ten selected areas of the state.

Who's paying the bill? Taxpayers in every other section of the state outside the ten selected areas.

The $11 million figure actually is $11,099,627. It represents what has been set up in the Administration's billion-dollar-plus-plus-plus general appropriations bill for "operation and maintenance" of the ten state-owned general hospitals for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The bill shortly will be on the Governor's desk, and with the gubernatorial signature attached thereto the way will be cleared once again for Pennsylvania's taxpayers to not only pay for and support their own local community hospital (there are 188 of them throughout the state) but also the ten state-owned general hospitals in these privileged areas of the state.

These ten state-owned general hospitals and the 188 local community hospitals both provide the same identical hospital services (the ten state-owned hospitals are not "mental" hospitals).

But in addition to the $11,099,627 set up for the "operation and maintenance" of these taxpayer gifts for the upcoming fiscal year there are other "plus-plus-plus" items Pennsylvania's taxpayers are underwriting.

For example here is the free hospital care accorded many patients with a little political help, the free furnishings of the hospitals themselves, the charming little political patronage group surrounding service personnel at each hospital, etc.

Then there is the most insignificant plus item of taxpayers building a brand new 200-bed hospital building for one of these selected and privileged areas as the old unit (also originally built by taxpayers) becomes shabby or worn out.

This is happening right now at Ashland State Hospital where a spanking new $5,000,000 unit is being built to replace the old hospital. Who's paying for it? The people of Ashland? No—taxpayers from throughout the state are footing the bill. (You pay for and build your own, though!)

Why build a new hospital at Ashland? Ira J. Mills, Commissioner of General and Special Hospitals of the Department of Public Welfare (which operates the ten general hospitals) explains that the construction is necessary—now get this—because the present structure has been condemned as a fire hazard by the state Department of Labor and Industry!

How delightful indeed—but so what? If the Department of Labor and Industry condemns your local hospitals, will the state come in and replace your unit?

Absolutely not—but the state will for the Ashland folks, which incidentally provided the best reason and excuse possible as to why the state should get out of the hospital business at Ashland! Or are these "gifted" facilities to be perpetuated indefinitely?

Legislation is already on the statute books "authorizing" the turning over of these hospitals to the local communities but there have not been and probably never will be any takers.

After all, why kick a gift horse in the face, or more bluntly expressed—why muddy the waters when you have a good thing going!

"Authorizing" obviously is not the answer; any unloading to be done must be "mandatory"—legislatively speaking, that is, and it's most difficult to find a legislator willing to cut his own political throat!

Off The Record:
—By BOB CLARK

Bigger Than You Think

You have to see it to believe it. We did. Stroud Union School District will have quite an educational plant surrounding the West Main St. section of Stroudsburg.

Dr. John P. Lim, a school director who works at his job every minute of free time, gave us the Cook's Tour. It was eye-opening and if we may say so, educational.

Most folks figure Stroud Union's high school territory borders only a few yards from the present building on West Main St. But this is not so.

If you forget Morey Elementary School (this is part of the district's territory) and the parking area, plus the Little League field and look toward the interchange of Rt. 50 off West Main more than a few football fields could cover the terrain. That adds up to quite a bit of yardage.

Officially Stroud Union High's plant will extend to Beers St., or the Houdaille subsidiary that stretches into the air out that way.

All told the coverage is 58 acres with a strong possibility of three more in the very near future.

Dr. Lim's blow-by-blow description shows Stroud Union's growth takes one to the Carnegie service station (9th St.) which overlooks a future physical education facilities; Knights of Columbus Home which peers at the new football field; and a site actually in Arlington Heights that will be above a proposed picnic area or anything else deemed necessary for the good of the district.

There is no doubt—if you can picture nice surroundings and other assets—that the area will enhance the area.

Stroud Union's new addition will let into a part of Gordon Griffiths Field. On the side toward the business section of Stroudsburg, a much needed expanded parking area will be available for events such as band concerts, choral programs and other activities that add momentum to the curriculum.

It hasn't been easy for the board to put together the land. It took time, but from what can be imagined on the surface their efforts will be worthwhile.

Work on the high school addition is expected to start this summer. In a year or so the entire area will get a face-lifting that will do justice to the entire lot area.

Like we said you have to see it to believe it. We did. And we liked what we saw.

The Allen-Scott Report

Warren Report

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON—The special commission investigating the assassination of President Kennedy has been forced to set a new target date for completion of its already overdue report—September 1.

Even that is tentative. The seven-member probing group had planned to publish its world-awaited findings by June 1. But a number of important witnesses are still to be heard, and crucial information still is being sought with no certainty when it can be obtained—if ever.

For example: Biggest gap in the commission's historic study is a comprehensive account of Lee Harvey Oswald's connection and activities during the three years he was in Russia as a "dedicated Marxist" and avowed defector.

The commission is still very much in the dark on this vital phase of the killer's life. Records and other material supplied by the Soviet have shed little light. The last batch, submitted some weeks ago, was of no material consequence. It chiefly supplemented and corroborated previous official documents.

Similarly, the State Department

so far has provided scant significant information.

Secretary Rusk, Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, who was in Moscow throughout the period Oswald lived in Russia, and members of the embassy's staff who had dealings with him have yet to testify. Several times, Rusk has been slated to appear, but crises and sudden trips to Europe and Southeast Asia necessitated postponements.

The commission still does not definitely know when these key State Department authorities will tell their stories.

STRANGE QUESTIONS—Also up in the air is when Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy will testify.

As exclusively disclosed in this column, the former First Lady has agreed to do that. But she has not signified when and in what manner—in person or in a written account.

A close friend of hers has told commission members Mrs. Kennedy is "going through a difficult period." She has good days and bad days. Perhaps what she is experiencing can best be described as undergoing the full reaction of what she has gone through. It's just catching up with her. She needs time to prepare herself for this ordeal, which it certainly will be.

The investigators expect Mrs. Kennedy to testify in person. But she may decide otherwise. They know she is consulting Attorney General Robert Kennedy, as she does on virtually all matters. She conferred with him before accepting the commission's invitation to appear.

Even more indefinite is a statement from President Johnson.

As reported by this column, the commission has indicated it will be glad to receive anything he cares to submit. So far there has been no word on what he will do.

Another factor delaying the investigators' report is the protracted Senate battle over the civil rights bill. This 10-week-old struggle has drastically curtailed the time and efforts of two of the probes—Senators Richard Russell, Ga., leader of the Southern bloc, and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., in the forefront of the fight for the legislation.

In the next several weeks, Mrs. Ruth Paine, in whose home Mrs. Marina Oswald was living at the time of the assassination, will be recalled for further questioning.

The probes particularly want to ask her about some baffling remarks made in the course of a conversation. As reported to the commission, Mrs. Paine's original statement was as follows:

"Do you think the government has done something they are ashamed of and are trying to cover up?"

"No, do you?" was the reply.

"Oh, no," said Mrs. Paine, "of course not."

"Then why did you ask?"

"I just wondered," said Mrs. Paine.

J. Lee Rankin, general counsel for the commission, is being advised to ask Attorney General Kennedy, CIA Director John McConne and other top officials to file affidavits that the documents and information in the files of their agencies relating to Oswald and the assassination.

The bill being urged as a "precautionary measure."

GENTLEMANLY BATTLE—One of the most significant aspects of the 10-week-long Senate debate over the civil rights measure is the restraint and decorum that has characterized it.

There have been a few instances of frayed tempers. But they are brief and left no lasting scars. However, the battle is far from over, and as the decisive vote nears, the courtly atmosphere may change.

In the meanwhile, the debate continues amicably. Illustrative is the following exchange: Senator Edmund Muskie, D-Me.: "The Congressional Record should reflect the fact that the Southern colleagues of my good friend from North Carolina and Louisiana are not present to hear the speech of the distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania. I wonder if, by the same reasoning, we could conclude that they fear they might be persuaded by the distinguished Senator that his views are correct."

Senator Sam Ervin, D-N.C.: "I should like to point out that they are absent from an entirely different reason. They already have possession of the truth, and they are now pondering some way in which to express the truth more eloquently in the hope that the Senator from Maine and the Senator from Pennsylvania will be converted to the right side of this issue."

SENATOR SAM ERVIN, D-N.C.: "I should like to point out that they are absent from an entirely different reason. They already have possession of the truth, and they are now pondering some way in which to express the truth more eloquently in the hope that the Senator from Maine and the Senator from Pennsylvania will be converted to the right side of this issue."

Speaking Of Your Health:

Doctor, I'd Like To Know

My sixteen-year-old son is on the wrestling team. He is healthy and sturdy. His shoulders and knees sometimes become scraped from falling or sliding on the mat. He calls these marks "mat burns." Are these dangerous? Can they become infected?

MRS. P. H. N., Oregon

Dear Mrs. N.: Athletic coaches are particularly careful to avoid mat burns by having boys wear protective coverings. Despite these precautions, mat burns do occur. The scraped areas should be cleaned immediately with soap and water. A gentle antiseptic should then be applied.

Added Protection
Germs are often found in these mat burns and infect the skin. Wrestlers should have the added protection of vaccination against tetanus before starting their training season.

There is some degree of danger in participating in any active sports. But there are also many benefits to be derived from all forms of athletics, which usually far outweigh the risks. Healthy, energetic youngsters should not be denied the joys and the advantages of sports because of unreasonable parental fears.

Parents may take comfort from the fact that schools, camps and other organizations provide careful supervision for all physical activities, and take every precaution to protect the health of their children.

When a person has hepatitis and is pronounced cured, is it necessary to keep having checkups, and how often? Are liver profiles and blood counts the only way to check up on hepatitis?

MRS. W. T. NITROIS

Dear Mrs. T.: There are many forms of hepatitis. Some are due to bacterial and virus infections, and others to serum reaction after transfusion.

Physician's Suggestion
It seems wise to have liver profile and blood count studies done only at the intervals suggested by the physician who has followed the nature and the course of the hepatitis.

Periodic check-ups are an excellent investment in sustained health and productivity. Unfortunately, the anxiety of some patients induces them to have too many repeated examinations because of their exaggerated fears of non-existent diseases.

Pitted Scars
My 14-year-old daughter has a typical case of "adolescent acne." It has already left pitted scars on her face. Is there any new treatment for acne? What can be done about the scars?

MRS. Y. T., New York

Dear Mrs. T.: Adolescent acne is still challenging the ingenuity of doctors and patients. The new antibiotics have helped immeasurably in the cure and control of acne. Diligent, persistent treatment is probably the key to eventual success.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

Prairie Schooner
During Colonial American days a type of large wagon was built in the Conestoga area of Pennsylvania. These wagons—called Conestogas—were the forerunners of the covered wagons, so called because they were covered by canvas stretched across a frame built atop the wagons.

These covered wagons were used by many settlers who poured westward during the last century, and also by freight carriers who hauled goods to army posts and settlements.

At a distance these wagons moving through the rippling grass of the prairies, their white canvas covers gleaming, looked somewhat like ships at sea. The similarity was noted and the wagons were called "prairie schooners."

E-Burg Man's Invention At P-K

STROUDSBURG — An East Stroudsburg man has assigned a patented temperature controlling fluid storage system to Paterson-Kelley Co. in East Stroudsburg.

The patent was issued May 19 by the U. S. Patent Office in Washington, D. C. to Leonard F. Lowe.

The invention covers a water storage tank and heater arrangement that is installed to an available supply of steam or other hot fluid for heating purposes.

The system instantly and automatically furnishes hot water at constant uniform temperatures. The invention supplies hot water in quantities required regardless of how sudden or erratic the demands may be.

At Minimum Cost

According to the patent the apparatus furnishes hot water at minimum cost, is fully self-contained, occupies minimum floor space and is suitable for installation in any location.

The storage water heater of Lowe's invention comprises a water storage tank with a cold water inlet connection and a heated water outlet.

Within the tank is an elongated casing which is open at its inner end and is welded at its opposite end to an opening in the wall of the water storage tank.

Within the casing is a bank of reversely bent tubes which receive steam or other heating fluid from a supply source. The casing also contains an array of baffles and temperature-sensing device and special valve.

During the actual process cold water enters the tank and passes through the casing and is heated by steam passing through the tubes. The heated water emerges from the open end of the casing and mixes with the water in the tank.

When a large quantity of hot water is withdrawn from the tank rapidly, the temperature drops, special valve and other parts function to immediately cause steam to flow through the tubes and makes an adequate supply of hot water.

S-burg Police Probe Theft At Church

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg police are investigating the theft of four wallets from members of Christ Episcopal Church Choir. The theft occurred during the morning worship service. The wallets were in clothing hung up by choir members.

The Rev. Charles Parke, pastor, last night told The Daily Record, "There was about $27 in the wallets taken from the members of the choir during Sunday morning services. Also taken were the driver's licenses and other important papers and keys of the people."

"The man was seen by an altar boy who thought he was a member of the church. The man asked the altar boy if the services were over. The lad replied, 'No just about half finished.'"

"Stroudsburg Police said the description fits a man, who is a drifter, who had been in the area for about three weeks. It is believed that the man spent one night sleeping in the borough lockup."

The incident was reported to the police Sunday after church services.

Lynch Tells Jaycees: Local Churches Lag On Aid To Negroes

STROUDSBURG — The president of the Monroe County Chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People said local church leaders could do more to help solve whatever problems Negroes face in this county.

Speaking at a meeting of the Pocono Mountain Junior Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night, Jesse Lynch said church groups have been lagging in the movement to attain civil rights for minority groups.

Lynch said he personally invited area pastors to attend the initial meeting of the local chapter and since then other invitations have been extended but few pastors have joined the movement.

He told the Jaycees the local NAACP has a complaint alleging discriminatory hiring practices before the state Human Relations Commission.

Complaint Against Firm

When asked to explain the complaint, Lynch said he has requested the commission to investigate the hiring practices at Redmond Finishing Co. in East Stroudsburg.

He said he has received no word from the commission except to be notified an investigator has visited the company.

Lynch said the commission was called in after several Negroes were refused jobs at Redmond.

He said one Negro girl was turned down because she had no previous employment record in the area and another was told she did not weigh enough to work there.

The NAACP leader told the Jaycees the future of the Negro rests with the young men of the country. He invited Jaycees members to attend NAACP meetings.

E-Burg Man Held For County Court

STROUDSBURG — Victoriano L. Muniz, 31, of 62 Ananokink St., East Stroudsburg, was remanded to Monroe County Jail yesterday after Harold D. Larrison, Sr., East Stroudsburg Justice of the Peace, found sufficient evidence at a preliminary hearing to hold him for further court action on charges of burglary.

Muniz pleaded not guilty to the charge that he entered the Star Furniture Co. at 727 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, on May 23 and stole about $450 worth of items. Dale is to be set by the court.

Early yesterday afternoon, Muniz also received a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Floyd W. Kellogg of Stroudsburg. Muniz also pleaded not guilty to a charge that he entered Courtland Motors at 26 N. Second St., Stroudsburg, on May 23 and stole about $800 worth of items.

However, Kellogg also found sufficient evidence at the hearing to hold him for further court action on a charge of burglary.

Council asked all residents who had complained about burned out street lights in the borough to wait until the Metropolitan Edition Co. strike is over. Electrical workers of the utility company are on strike and when it is ended the lights will be replaced.

Phillip Ruggiero, borough solicitor, was told to file a complaint, with the Public Utility Commission in Harrisburg, about the drinking water in the borough and the poor service the borough has from the company.

Dog Owners To Be Warned

Council told the secretary to write letters to all dog owners in the Columbus and Roseto Ave. area warning them to control their dogs or face prosecution.

Mayor George Ciaquinto told council that the playground equipment at the borough park has been installed. He told council the equipment was for the younger people in the borough and not for the misuse of the "older teenagers."

Michael Filago, tax collector, presented council with a list of 25 persons and asked that they be exonerated from taxes. Council approved the request.

Just Between Us —

I have long suspected that the bride's "going away" hat was largely useful to keep the rice out of her hair as they ran for the car, and that she took it off even before the tin cans were untied from the back of the car. And probably didn't wear it again until next Easter.

There has been a whole hatless, flat - heeled generation which, while admitting that a hate and high - heeled shoes are fitting symbols of their new status as wives and mistresses, actually feel acutely uncomfortable in either.

But Sandra Rohrbacker, who was married recently up in Newfoundland, is the first bride I've had who didn't even wear her "going - away outfit" to go away in. With all the proper ensemble packed safely away in her suitcase, not even excepting the corsage, she braved the shower of rice and well wishers in blue jeans, white sneakers, jersey top and jacket.

Admittedly a much more comfortable costume for traveling in a convertible with its top down, she'll probably have ample opportunity to wear the grey pinstripe suit with its although the camellia corsage won't travel well in a suitcase, I'm afraid.

But it does make one wonder. I always wonder where the women who shop, travel and walk up and down Main Street with their hair up in rollers under a babushka can possibly be going that is so much more important than where they are now. Who is going to see them when the hair-do is finally unveiled, who hasn't seen them in the process?

Maybe they're going to a formal party with visiting royalty as guests, although those are rather rare in these parts. Of maybe they're just going home to watch television with every curl just so on the theory that the most important people to put up a front for are their own family. And maybe they're right.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

I'm scared to death of height. I don't like to be off the ground as much as six inches unless I'm in an airplane ... but that didn't help me a bit Monday when scores of quilts were to be hung in our Keystone Room and there was no one to give me a hand. Claude Miller was up to his ears in bedspreads that had to be counted and boxed. Harold Albert was, as he expressed it, in a cyclonic mood. The only women in the place who seemed completely at peace with themselves and the world were the two little ladies setting up a quilting frame for the woman of Grace Lutheran Church, and calmly pinning a quilt top into place. They worked quietly, amiably, and were done in no time, not even stopping for the coffee I offered them.

I love quilts, and apparently am far from being alone in this category. It was amazing how many people, passing through our Keystone Room, would say, "Oh ... I have a quilt that my grandmother made. I would have brought it if I'd only known." Actually, we could have had hundreds of magnificent quilts on exhibit had we even hinted via newspaper or radio that we wished them ... but we were afraid to do so, lest so many come in we would have had to turn some away for lack of space. As it is, those used as a backdrop for Quilts and Crafts Week have been loaned by a few personal friends and by members of our store family.

There are two ... one utilizing 3945 patches, the other 1350 patches made and loaned by Francene McCain. The first is called "Trip Around the World" and combines the most beautiful shades of yellow and pale greens one could imagine. The other is done in shades of orchid against white. Mrs. McCain is not positive of the pattern but refers to it as "Triangles and Crosses." The very same pattern (although it looks much different in the predominantly red tones they have used) is being worked upon right now by the Lutheran church ladies. Both are charming, and I can just picture the warmth and beauty the bright red would bring into a colonial-type bedroom.

We have four double wedding ring quilts, loaned by Betty Peterson, Fern Michelfelder, Adelaide Volkert and Mrs. Eugene Serfass. Hilda Dimmick has loaned a log cabin quilt and an hour glass quilt that are each over 100 years old. One was quilted by Lucinda Van Etten of Shawnee, the other by her daughter, Cornelia Van Etten Kober. Esther Ainspach has brought us a double Irish chain pieced by her mother, and it takes me back to my teens when Mrs. Lake spent part of each year with the Ainspachs and could be seen almost any day seated in a small chair busy with her sewing. Mrs. C. K. Eilenberger is exhibiting a very lovely embroidered quilt made by her daughter, Sue Eilenberger Anderson, and from Alice Wicks and Carolyn Kerr we have old, old quilts that have been long treasured by their families. Some of these are so old, no one is sure about the pattern name ... so, if you do, the owners would be happy to hear from you.

Particularly unusual are two woven coverlets from the family of Mrs. Ernest H. Wyckoff. The names of the weavers and the dates are woven into the corners, and they were loaned for our exhibit by Margaret Wyckoff Wells.

It was a mad time, getting everything hung before afternoon ... even more confusing when I'd pause to answer the telephone, go to lunch, or enter another quilt. Pacl is, it was so hectic with rushing into advertising to ask Marlene Andrews to please print another sign, that I'm not at all surprised she finally printed one to end 'em all: a nice, neat job that dangled from the doorway and proclaimed: Madalyn Makoney is hereby barred from these premises until further notice. Marlene's an obliging soul, however ... so a few minutes later she walked into my office to deliver the signs. And I reminded her that I too have something posted outside of my door. It reads "Exit to fire escape."

Cy Barrett Says

Green Salesmen Sell

DEAR CY:

My problem may not be big to anyone else, but to me it is the size of a mountain. How does a man of 41, with an arrested case of cancer, find a sales job? I have been to 19 employment agencies with no results. I wrote 60 companies, seeking a job, but still no results. Previously, I worked with oil drilling equipment, but my doctor ordered me to get lighter work. So I started after a sales job connected with the oil and gas industry. What next?

G. HERTER

Employers are reluctant to hire salesmen of your age with no experience in selling. That's as natural as gas. To get into sales as a career, I suggest you start via the direct selling route. All sales are made directly from buyer to seller.

No middleman. Remuneration is on a straight commission. Books, baby items, calendars, cookware, cosmetics, garden products, hosiery, jewelry, luggage, clothing, tools and uniforms are typical of the merchandise sold in this manner. The prestige of direct salesmen and women has risen greatly in the past decade due to a major change. Itinerant salesmen and women have been replaced by those who sell locally. This has placed a greater emphasis on service and building customers, in an industry which approaches the 3 billion dollar mark in annual sales.

Through direct selling, you can learn to sell and build a reputation. Then, if you wish to seek other sales work, you have a results story on which to sell yourself. Direct selling companies furnish training aids, and many require no investment other than operating an automobile.

Can you learn to sell? In this day, you'll reap sales merely by trying. If you doubt it, make a few small purchases with no change other than a $5 bill. You'll follow a long, dusty road before you find someone enterprising enough to part you from more of your money.

DEAR MAUD: Words ring in paradise, too. Anyone can take sincere forgiveness honors who is constantly practicing.

CY

DEAR CY: My husband and I are calling it quits after 10 years of marriage. Life insurance has always interested me and, after moving away, I might get into this work as an agent. Do women get into this occupation, or do they avoid the necessary hard work? I can sell, but am afraid the policies I sell won't stay sold. What do you think about a woman working as a life insurance agent?

MRS. BEAUFLOY
DEAR MRS. BEAUFLOY: There are 13,000 lady life insurance agents in this country. According to a U.S. census bureau survey, 38 per cent of these gals work 50 or more hours per week. Another 38 per cent put in 35 to 50. With the population booming, the public becoming more life insurance conscious, and greater acceptance of women in business, you should find opportunity in this field. Last year, families buying ordinary life insurance gave up only 5.1 per cent of the policies in force. A strong indication that what you pitch will stick to the wall.

Dirksen Civil Rights Changes Like Great U. S. Compromises

By Richard Spong
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — "All Government, indeed every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue, and every prudent act, is founded on compromise and barter. We balance inconveniences; we give and take; we remit some rights that we may enjoy others, and we choose rather to be happy citizens than subtle disputants."

The famous words are from Edmund Burke's Speech on Conciliation with America, delivered before the House of Commons on March 22, 1775, but their meaning — indeed even the rhetoric — is being echoed on the Senate floor today by Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen (Ill.), Minority Leader and key man in the civil rights leadership in the Senate.

Without the votes which Dirksen may be able to deliver, closure would be impossible to achieve. Dirksen's price was compromise as represented by the agreement reached on May 13 by Dirksen, Majority Whip Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.), and Attorney Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Dirksen had submitted 70 amendments to the civil rights bill, many of them technical. The major change he sought, however, was to remove or reduce the federal government's powers to bring suit on behalf of individual Negroes against individual businessmen under Title II (public accommodations) and Title VII (fair employment practices).

The thrust of the agreement under both titles is that the government will sue only when it finds a "pattern" of racial discrimination in a certain area. The civil rights acts of 1957 and 1960, the first to pass the Senate since 1875, were made possible only by bipartisan compromise.

Indeed, the whole history of Negro rights in the United States traces back to the institution of slavery and the historic Missouri Compromise of 1820.

Missouri's request for admission into the Union in 1818 brought both houses of Congress into a deadlock.

The South, having half the senators, as Charles and Mary Beard have pointed out, could prevent the admission of Missouri stripped of slavery; the North, powerful in the House, could keep Missouri with slavery out indefinitely.

The answer was to bring Maine into the Union free and Missouri slave. At the same time it was agreed that the remainder of the vast Louisiana territory north of the parallel of 36 degrees 30 minutes should be, like the old Northwest, forever free, while the southern portion was left to slavery.

This represented an immense gain for liberty, for the area dedicated to free farmers was many times greater than that left to slave plantation operators

Pen Argyl Officials' Aim: Keep All Streets Repaired

PEN ARGYL — "I'm retired and have the time to devote to council matters. I have been active in politics and I enjoy serving on council," Harry Bosold said yesterday.

One of the areas of work Bosold is concerned with is the streets. As a councilman, he takes pride in what he is doing and the things that are planned for the future.

"First, I plan to have all the streets in the borough repaired and in good condition. This will be done as the money for the various jobs is made available to council," he said.

Continuing he said, "This year Applegate Ave. will be repaved from curb to curb, and it will be widened 10 feet. It is now 24 feet, it will be 34 feet wide when the job is completed.

"Also planned to be opened this year is Heller Ave. from Bell to Pennsylvania Ave. This section will no doubt be opened this summer.

"I was also instrumental in the purchase of a new used truck for the borough. The one we had was old and cost more to keep it in repair. It cost more than it was worth. With the new truck we can do much more and in a two or three year period it will pay for itself."

Bosold is not one to look at just tomorrow. He has his sights set on the future, things that will be a benefit to the community.

Annex Land

"It is my plan to initiate a move to annex additional land into the borough. A move such as this will give the borough additional land which the owners can subdivide into building lots," he said.

Continuing, as he puffed on his cigar, he said, "There is little or no area in the borough that can be converted into building lots.

"I also plan to get a movement going to bring additional industry into the area. This is something every community must do if it wants to continue to grow and prosper.

"Industry gives a community a place for its young people to obtain good jobs and this stops them from moving from the area so they can earn a living.

Added Tax Aid

"Industry also brings tax monies into the borough treasury and this money allows the community to better itself in many ways. With the additional money, streets can be improved at a faster rate, public services can be expanded. Oh, there are so many things that can and will be done once industry locates in the borough."

Looking into the past Bosold said, "I was not on council when the sewer and storm system was voted on but I'm sure that I would have gone along

Edward Doffenbach, district governor, told the meeting that a new club is being chartered at Blakeslee Corners. Mt. Pocono's new charter will include the borough of Mt. Pocono and with the idea. I feel that the members of council at that time should be congratulated for their foresight."
